At this session, parents will learn how a child's sensory needs can affect engagement and participation in daily life. A brief overview will be done with parents to help them gain an understanding of the seven senses and how sensory information affects things like dressing, eating, bathing, sleeping and sometimes unexpected behaviours. Basic ideas to help your child at home will be shared.

The sessions offered through Family Oriented Programming are opportunities for families to increase their knowledge of parenting and early childhood development. We offer a range of sessions that cater to varying interests and assist families with key areas of child development. These sessions help to connect families to local services offered in the community by outside agencies and organizations.
